

SECOND NATIONAL OPEN LETTER TO AUSTRALIAN GOVERNMENTS ON COVID-19 AND PRISONS AND YOUTH DETENTION CENTRES

We the undersigned are again seeking your immediate action to reduce the risk of transmission of COVID-19 in the Australian criminal justice system, especially prisons and youth detention centres. This requires INFORMATION, INDEPENDENT MONITORING AND RELEASE.

This national open letter has been produced in consultation with and with contributions from a range of national stakeholders, including the National Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Legal Services (NATSILS) and Keeping Women Out of Prison Coalition (KWOOP). The ANNEXURE to this letter summarises the human rights and community protection issues arising from the COVID-19 pandemic in relation to people in Australian prisons and youth detention centres (YDC).

This national letter makes FIVE calls to decision-makers in criminal and penal justice:

1. Programs of testing, diagnosis and public health measures (including the provision of personal protective equipment) to be immediately implemented in all prisons and YDC.
2. Hospitalisation/urgent medical treatment of any person in prison or YDC (or police custody) who has COVID-19 symptoms. Families and ATSILS/Custody Notification Service (CNS) to be immediately notified of the symptoms, hospitalisation and treatment.
3. Ongoing and publicly available information on the COVID-19 testing, diagnosis and public health measures in prisons and YDC (without compromising private health information). This should particularly be made available to people in prison, their families, lawyers and the courts (to enable informed bail and sentencing decisions).
4. Independent monitoring by health and criminal justice experts of COVID-19 responses across prisons and YDC.
5. The current information is that there is a risk to life and health in prisons and YDC, which in turn creates risks for the wider community. This requires every State and Territory to legislate for immediate release, where it is safe to do so. Priorities for release should be:
 - a. Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people – consistently identified as one of the most vulnerable groups.
 - b. The vulnerable, including the elderly; peoples who are victims of domestic violence, coercive control and human trafficking; and those with additional health issues such as immunosuppression, respiratory illness and hypertension, addiction and/or mental health.
 - c. Women.
 - d. Children.
 - e. Those serving sentences of less than 6 months or with 6 months or less remaining.
 - f. Unsentenced people in prison.

Prof Felicity Gerry QC Crockett Chambers, Melbourne and Deakin University and Carmelite Chambers, London

Prof Thalia Anthony Faculty of Law and Criminal Justice Cluster Leader, University of Technology Sydney (UTS)

Prof Lorana Bartels Criminology Program Leader, Australian National University (ANU); Adjunct Professor, University of Canberra and University of Tasmania

Prof Elizabeth Grant CF School of Architecture and Urban Design, RMIT University

Dr Clarke Jones Research School of Psychology, ANU

A/Prof Rebecca Wickes School of Social Sciences, Monash University

Dr Yasmine Musharbash School of Archaeology and Anthropology, ANU

A/Prof Anthony Hopkins ANU College of Law, ANU

Dr Faith Gordon School of Social Sciences, Monash University and Director of the International Youth Justice Network

Prof Elena Marchetti Law School, Griffith University

Latoya Aroha Rule School of Psychology, Social Work and Social Policy, University of South Australia

Jarrold Williams Barrister, Victorian Bar

Rishi Nathwani Barrister, Victorian Bar & Bar of England and Wales

Dr Jamie Walvisch Lecturer, Monash Law Faculty

Bonnie Millen Senior Policy Advisor, Advocacy for Inclusion

Dr Kate Burns School of Social Sciences, Monash University

Dr Jarrett Blaustein School of Social Sciences, Monash University

Dr Isabelle Bartkowiak-Théron Senior Researcher, Tasmanian Institute of Law Enforcement Studies, University of Tasmania

A/Prof Leanne Weber Criminology, Monash University

Maria Elander Senior Lecturer, La Trobe University

Dave McDonald Lecturer, University of Melbourne

Dr Russell Marks Honorary Research Associate, La Trobe University

Dr Melissa Jardine Board of Directors, Global Law Enforcement & Public Health Association

Erin Buckley Solicitor, Victorian Supreme Court and Sessional Academic at La Trobe University and Melbourne University

Giverney Ainscough PhD candidate, ANU Centre for Social Research and Methods

Professor Kathryn Henne Director, School of Regulation and Global Governance, ANU

A/Prof Susan Harris Rimmer Deputy Head of School (Research), Griffith University

Dr Loene Howes Senior Lecturer in Criminology, University of Tasmania

Prof Andrew Day School of Social and Political Science, University of Melbourne

Joanne Stagg Lecturer, Griffith University

Dr Vicky Nagy Lecturer in Criminology, University of Tasmania

Prof Ross Homel AO Foundation Professor of Criminology & Criminal Justice, Griffith University

Prof Charles Sampford Foundation Dean of Law and Research Professor in Ethics, Griffith University

Dr Anna Olsen Senior Fellow, Medical School, ANU

Dr Zoe Staines Research Fellow (Criminology/Sociology), University of Queensland

Steven Caruana Coordinator, Australia OPCAT Network

Dr Robin Fitzgerald Senior Lecturer in Criminology, University of Queensland

Carly Stanley CEO & Founder, Deadly Connections Community & Justice Services

Sarah Paddick Director, Architect Totalspace Design

Keenan Mundine Co-Founder & Ambassador, Deadly Connections Community & Justice Services

Dr Angela Higginson Senior Research Fellow, Queensland University of Technology

Prof Alison Gerard	Professor in Law, Charles Sturt University
Dr Adrian Farrugia	Research Fellow, La Trobe University
Stephanie Curtis	MAE Scholar, Burnet Institute
Prof Rick Sarre	Dean of Law, University of South Australia
Prof Kerry Carrington	Head, School of Justice, Queensland University of Technology
Elizabeth Evatt AC	International Commission of Jurists
Laura Button	Leadership Program Coordinator, Women Transforming Justice Project, Fitzroy Legal Service
Ebba Herrlander Birgersson	Researcher, Tasmanian Institute of Law Enforcement Studies, University of Tasmania
Robert Richter QC	Barrister, Victorian Bar
Megan Casey	Barrister, Victorian Bar
Felix Ralph	Partner, C. Marshall & Associates
Cameron Marshall	Principal, C. Marshall & Associates
Daniela Jovanovska	Partner, C. Marshall & Associates
Dr Emma Colvin	Senior Lecturer, Centre for Law and Justice, Charles Sturt University
Dr Wayne Sanderson	Team Leader, Policy/Advocacy, ANTaR Queensland
Dr Maria Giannacopoulos	Senior Lecturer, Sociological Studies, Flinders University
A/Prof Kelly Richards	Deputy Director, Centre for Justice, Queensland University of Technology
A/Prof David Bright	Centre for Crime Policy and Research, Flinders University
Dr Andy Kaladelfos	Lecturer, Criminology, UNSW
Dr Aidan Craney	Lecturer, Department of Social Inquiry, La Trobe University
Amie Hancock	Barrister, Victorian Bar
Sarah Condon	Solicitor, Stary Norton Halphen Criminal Law Specialists
Alison Verhoeven	CEO, Australian Healthcare and Hospitals Association
Carrie Fowlie	CEO, Alcohol Tobacco and Other Drug Association ACT (ATODA)
Alana Reader	Lawyer, Stary Norton Halphen Criminal Law Specialists
Dr Carolyn McKay	Senior Lecturer, University of Sydney Law School
A/Prof Nicole L Asquith	Policing & Criminal Justice, Western Sydney University
Dr Peta Malins	Senior Lecturer, Criminology & Justice Studies, RMIT University
Prof Heather Douglas	Law School, University of Queensland
Dr Kristen Davis	School of Social Sciences, Monash University
Prof Tamara Walsh	School of Law, University of Queensland
Prof Susanne Karstedt	School of Criminology and Criminal Justice, Griffith University
A/Prof Anna Copeland	Director of Clinical Legal Education, School of Law, Murdoch University
Eddie Cubillo	Senior Fellow, University of Melbourne Law School
A/Prof Tracey Booth	Faculty of Law, UTS
A/Prof Bronwyn Ewing	Faculty of Education, QUT
Sally Andersen	Lecturer, Faculty of Law, Monash University
Julia Kretzenbacher	Barrister, Victorian Bar
Jonathan Barreiro	Barrister, Victorian Bar
Carol Lawson	Associate Lecturer, UNSW Law
Martin Radzaj	Barrister, Victorian Bar
David Risstrom	Barister, Victorian Bar
Ashleigh Stewart	PhD Candidate; Research Assistant, Burnet Institute & Monash University
Prof Eileen Baldry	Deputy Vice Chancellor Equity Diversity & Inclusion; Professor of Criminology, University of NSW (UNSW) Sydney
Prof Bronwyn Naylor	Graduate School of Business and Law, RMIT University
Maria Morris	Law Graduate, Bond University
John Killick	Author

Derai McDonald	Criminology Student, La Trobe University
A/Prof Patrick Emerton	Law Resources, Monash University
Dr Nadine Connell	Criminology, Griffith University
Dr Kate Fitz-Gibbon	Director, Monash Gender and Family Violence Prevention Centre
Tom Battersby	Barrister, Victorian Bar
Mihal Greener	Barrister, Victorian Bar
James Ryan	Reader, Victorian Bar
Prof Reece Walters	School of Humanities and Social Sciences, Deakin University
Dr Sarah Keenan	Senior Lecturer, Birkbeck School of Law, University of London
Dr Madeleine Ulbrick	Research Associate Monash University
Ben Watson	Lawyer, Johnstone and Reimer Lawyers
Dr Francis Markham	Centre for Aboriginal Economic Policy Research, ANU
Robert O'Neill	Barrister, Victorian Bar
Phillip Gibson	Partner, Nyman Gibson Miralis
Dr Anton Symkovych	Lecturer in Criminology, University of Melbourne
A/Prof Karen Soldatic	School of Social Sciences, Western Sydney University
Dr Adam Masters	Senior Lecturer in Criminology, ANU
John Braithwaite	Emeritus Professor, ANU
A/Prof Mehera San Roque	Faculty of Law, UNSW
Patrick Burton	Research Associate, University of Tasmania
Dr Mark Wood	Lecturer in Criminology, Deakin University
Greg Barns	Barrister and Former National President Australian Lawyers Alliance
Jonathan Budgeon	Deputy Chair, Prisoners Legal Service Tasmania
Ashlee Cannon	Barrister, Victorian Bar
Lisa Parker	Lecturer in Law, University of South Australia
A/Prof Matthew Ball	School of Justice, QUT
Julian R Murphy	PhD candidate (Law), University of Melbourne
John Feneley	Former NSW Mental Health Commission
Prof Rob White	Distinguished Professor of Criminology, University of Tasmania
Robert Tickner	Former Australian Minister for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Affairs
Prof David Best	Criminology, University of Derby; Visiting Professor, ANU
Alexandra Baxter	PhD Candidate (Criminology) and Tutor, Flinders University
Dr Karen Gelb	Consultant Criminologist and Lecturer, Criminology, University of Melbourne
Dr Emma Russel	Senior Lecturer in Crime, Justice & Legal Studies, La Trobe University
Katie Green	Youth Solicitor, Convenor of the NSW Youth Justice Coalition
Tom Kelly	Former NSW Public Solicitor
Robyn Lincoln	Assistant Professor, Criminology, Bond University
Andrew Christopoulos	National President, Australian Lawyers Alliance
Dr Louis Schetzer	Manager, Policy and Advocacy, Australian Lawyers Alliance
Dr David Brown	Emeritus Professor, UNSW Sydney
A/Prof Angela Dwyer	Policing and Emergency Management, University of Tasmania
Rebecca Wallis	Associate Lecturer, TC Beirne School of Law, University of Queensland
Dr Larissa Sandy	Senior Lecturer in Criminology and Justice Studies, RMIT University
Shelley Eder	Lecturer, Charles Darwin University
Emma Towney	Solicitor, Dhurrawang Aboriginal Human Rights Program, Canberra Community Law
Prof Janet Ransley	Director, Griffith Criminology Institute, Griffith University
Dr Robyn Blewer	Lecturer, Law School; Director, Griffith University Innocence Project
Emma Golledge	Director, Kingsford Legal Centre
Dr Julie Barkworth	Lecturer, School of Criminology and Criminal Justice, Griffith University

Morgana Butler	Coordinator, Taldumande Youth Services
Reece Cossar	PhD Candidate, Burnet Institute
Penny Hill	PhD Candidate, Burnet Institute, Monash University
Maddy Grant	Solicitor, Stary Norton Halphen Criminal Lawyers
Dr Lisa Durnian	Lecturer, School of Justice, QUT
Ronald Behlau	Partner, Behlau Murakami Grant ILP
Dean Lloyd	Lloyd Criminal Consulting Co
Prof Penelope Weller	Graduate School of Business and Law, RMIT University
Prof Alison Young	Francine McNiff Professor of Criminology, Melbourne University
Amy Kirwan	Program Manager, Burnet Institute
Stan Winford	Associate Director, Centre for Innovative Justice, RMIT University
Jeremy Boland	CEO, Positive Youth Incorporated
Jill Faulkner	Manager, Women Transforming Justice, Fitzroy legal Service
Marcia Williams	CEO, Women's Centre for Health Matters
Dr Karen Crawley	Senior Lecturer, Griffith Law School
Nicole Shackleton	PhD Candidate (Law), La Trobe University
Dr Diarmaid Harkin	Senior Lecturer in Criminology, Deakin University
Debbie Kilroy	CEO, Sisters Inside
A/Prof Jennifer Balint	Associate Professor, Criminology, University of Melbourne
Camilla Pandolfini	Principal Solicitor, Public Interest Advocacy Centre
Courtney Hart	Lawyer, Stary Norton Halphen
A/Prof Tanja Dreher	Arts and Media, UNSW
Michael Griffiths	Senior Lecturer, Arts, English and Media, University of Wollongong
Kerry Weste	President, Australian Lawyers for Human Rights
Anthony Redmond	Visiting Research Fellow, ANU
Laura Sutton	Children's Court Assistance Scheme Coordinator (Campbelltown) Macarthur Legal Centre
Dr Alana Piper	Research Fellow, University of Technology Sydney
Annie Yuan	Barrister, Victorian Bar
Emma Phillips	Deputy Director & Principal Solicitor, Queensland Advocacy Incorporated
Abilene Singh	Barrister, Victorian Bar
David Carolan	Barrister, Victorian Bar
Dr Natalia Hanley	Criminology, University of Wollongong
Dr Emma Campbell	CEO, ACT Council of Social Service (ACTCOSS)
Dr Tess Bartlett	Research Fellow, Monash Gender and Family Violence Prevention Centre
Dr Bree Carlton	Senior Lecturer, Criminology, Deakin University
Elena Campbell	Associate Director, RMIT Centre for Innovative Justice
Rob Hulls	Director, RMIT Centre for Innovative Justice
Stan Winford	Associate Director, RMIT Centre for Innovative Justice
Dr Julia Dehm	Lecturer, La Trobe University
Kavita Raj	Honours Student, Criminology & Criminal Justice, Griffith University
Matthew Atkinson	Lecturer/Managing Solicitor, University of South Australia
Dr Mindy Sotiri	Director, Advocacy, Policy and Research, Community Restorative Centre
E/Prof Richard Harding	Inaugural Inspector of Custodial Services, WA
Dr Ian Warren	Senior Lecturer, Criminology, Deakin University
Jacob Slucki	Partner, Kaczmarek Grigor Lawyers
A/Prof Susanne Davies	Head, Department of Social Inquiry, La Trobe University
Scott Wilson	CEO, Aboriginal Drug & Alcohol Council SA
Hannah Solomons	HDR student, Law Faculty, UTS
Marion Isobel	Barrister, Victorian Bar

Cassandra Generoso	Lawyer, Leanne Warren & Associates
Katharina Storey	Women's Leadership Group Member, Women Transforming Justice Project, Fitzroy Legal Service
Rebecca Bunn	PhD Candidate, University of Melbourne
Felicity Gray	PhD Candidate, ANU
Dr Ruth McCausland	Senior Research Fellow, UNSW
Lisanne Adam	PhD Candidate (Criminal Justice and Corrections), RMIT University
Adjunct Prof George Newhouse	CEO, National Justice Project
A/Prof Janet Hunt	Centre for Aboriginal Policy and Economic Research, ANU
A/Prof Megan Williams	Research Lead and Assistant Director, National Centre for Cultural Competence, University of Sydney
Dr Claire Loughnan	Lecturer, Criminology, University of Melbourne
A/Prof Julia Quilter	School of Law, University of Wollongong
Tom Battersby	Barrister, Victorian Bar
Dr Anthea Vogl	Senior Lecturer, Unniversity of Technology Sydney
Prof Carla Treloar	Director, Centre for Social Research in Health and Social Policy Research Centre, UNSW Sydney
Dr Ian Freckelton QC	Barrister, Victorian Bar
Lachlan Cameron	Barrister, Victorian Bar
Rohan Lawrence	Barrister, Victorian Bar
William Barker	Barrister, Victorian Bar
Kate Ballard	Barrister, Victorian Bar
Lucinda Thies	Barrister, Victorian Bar
Dr Diana Johns	Senior Lecturer in Criminology, University of Melbourne
Stephanie Wallace	Barrister, Victorian Bar
Jon Stanhope AO	Former Chief Minister, Australian Capital Territory
Guy Gilbert SC	Barrister, Victorian Bar
Julian McMahon AC SC	Barrister, Victorian Bar; President, Capital Punishment Justice Project
Dr Karen Crawley	Senior Lecturer, Griffith Law School
Sara Kowal	Vice President, Capital Punishment Justice Project
Dr Paul Simpson	Research Fellow, The Kirby Institute, UNSW Sydney
A/Prof Peter Higgs	Department of Public Health, La Trobe University
Dr George Dertadian	Lecturer in Criminology, UNSW
Steve Hayes	Transition Manager, Red Lily Health Board, West Arnhem, NT
Jenny Crosbie	Research Fellow, Deakin University
Dr Julie Kimber	Senior Lecturer, Swinburne University
Prof Andreas Schloenhardt	Law, University of Queensland/University of Vienna
Emeritus Prof Wilfrid Prest	University of Adelaide
Dr Fran Gale	Senior Lecturer, Western Sydney University
Veronika Drago	Barrister, Victorian Bar
A/Prof Mary Anne Kenny	Law, Murdoch University
Prof Julie Stubbs	Co-Director, Centre for Crime, Law & Justice UNSW Sydney
Professor Kathy Laster	Director sir Zelman Cowen centre Victoria university
Jennifer Keene-McCann	Solicitor; Sessional Clinic Director, Ormond College, University of Melbourne
A/Prof Kylie Valentine	Research Director, Social Policy Research Centre, UNSW Sydney
Marty Aust	President, Criminal Lawyers Association of the Northern Territory
Elise McMahon	Senior Clinical Psychologist, Forensic Mental Health Services, SA Health; Vice President, Capital Punishment Justice Project
Dr Marisela Velazquez	Visiting Academic Researcher, James Cook University

Anthony Barker	Student, Bachelor of Criminology and Criminal Justice, Griffith University
Sophie Trevitt	Solicitor, Australian Lawyers for Human Rights
Prof Fiona Haines	Criminology, University of Melbourne
Dr Mary Ellen Harrod	CEO, NSW Users and AIDS Association
Susanna Locke	Barrister, Victorian Bar
Michael Curtis	PhD Candidate & Research Assistant, Burnet Institute & Monash University
Prof Irene Watson	Pro-Vice Chancellor, Aboriginal Leadership and Strategy, University of South Australia
Dr Judy Putt	Research Fellow, ANU
Lidia Thorpe	Indigenous Lead, Amnesty International.
Dr Dylan Lino	School of Law, University of Queensland
Ruth Parker	Principal Lawyer, Galbally Parker Criminal Lawyers
Mary Spiers Williams	Legal practitioner, Lecturer in Law and Sub-Dean Undergraduate Indigenous Studies, ANU
Dr Helen Taylor	Senior Research Officer, ANU
Jack Lumsden	Criminal Lawyer, North Australian Aboriginal Justice Agency
Sam Biondo	Executive Officer, Victorian Alcohol and Drug Association
Dr Laura Bedford	Lecturer, Criminology, Deakin University
A/Prof Marie Segrave	Criminology, Monash University
Dr Ibolya Losoncz	Researcher, ANU
Geoffrey Davey	CEO, Queensland Injectors Health Network (QuIHN) Ltd
Andrew McGregor	Lawyer, Dowling McGregor Solicitors
Odette Shenfield	Lawyer, Fitzroy Legal Service
Helen Gibbon	Senior Lecturer, Faculty of Law, University of New South Wales
Prof Martin Holt	Centre for Social Research in Health, UNSW Sydney
Ben Mostyn	Lecturer, Faculty of Law, University of Wollongong
A/Prof Peter Rush	Law School, University of Melbourne
Prof Alison Ritter	Director, Drug Policy Modelling Program, UNSW
Dr Jake Rance	Research Fellow, Centre for Social Research in Health, UNSW
Tessa Di Paolo	Lawyer, Stary Norton Halphen Criminal Law Specialists
Miranda Bain	Director, Funds in Court, Supreme Court of Victoria
Filip Djordjevic	Research Assistant, Burnet Institute
Carly Lloyd	Barrister, Victorian Bar
Dr Caroline Spiranovic	Senior Lecturer in Law, University of Tasmania
Brionee Noonan	Coordinator, Aboriginal Peak Organisations Northern Territory
Kristy (Rosie) Schubert	Culturally Responsive Trauma Informed Care Facilitator, Aboriginal Medical Services Alliance Northern Territory (AMSANT)
Katia Lallo	Community Lawyer, Springvale Monash Legal Service
Carmen Reid	PhD Candidate (Criminology), University of Tasmania
A/Prof Jennifer Nielsen	School of Law & Justice, Southern Cross University
Scott Wilson	CEO, Aboriginal Drug & Alcohol Council SA
Hugo Moodie	Barrister, Victorian Bar
Lyn Dundon	Advocacy and Campaigns Manager, Financial Counselling Victoria
Heather Anderson	Lawyer, David Barrese & Associates
Chris Davies	Lawyer, Prison Law Program, Fitzroy Legal Service
Sarah-Jane Olsen	Executive Officer, Hepatitis ACT
Marcelle Burns	Lecturer, Law School, University of New England
Sophie Russell	Research Associate, UNSW; PhD Candidate, UTS
Michelle Barclay	Solicitor, Canberra Community Law
Farzana Choudhury	Senior Solicitor, Canberra Community Law

A/Prof Penny Crofts	Law, UTS
Fabiano Cangelosi	Barrister, Edward Coke Chambers
Dr Jennifer Skattebol	Senior Research Fellow, UNSW
Helen Blaber	Director and Principal Solicitor, Prisoners Legal Service Inc (Qld)
Patrick Horton	PhD Candidate (Anthropology), University of Sydney
Robyn Read	Former NSW Member of Legislative Assembly
Cassandra Bennett	Legal Studies teacher
Dr Joni Meenagh	Lecturer, Criminology and Justice Studies, RMIT
Professor Karen Fisher	Social Policy Research Centre, UNSW Sydney
Elisa Buggy	Executive Officer, Flat Out Inc.
Shelley Walker	Research Assistant, Burnet Institute
Tessa Dharmendra	Practice Manager, Allied Health
Dr Lara Palombo	Lecturer, Macquarie University
Rachel O'Reilly	PhD Candidate, Goldsmiths University
Dr Linda Steele	Senior Lecturer in Law, UTS
Dr Rimple Mehta	Lecturer, Western Sydney University
Ian Neil	Manager, Pivot Support Services
Anusha Goonetilleke	Solicitor
Janine Perlman	Barrister, Victorian Bar
A/Prof Georgina Heydon	Criminology and Justice Studies, RMIT University
Jim Shaw	Barrister, Victorian Bar
Dr Robin Fitzgerald	Senior Lecturer in Criminology, University of Queensland
A/Prof Ben Edwards	Senior Fellow, Centre for Social Research and Methods, ANU
Jonathon Hunyor	CEO, Public Interest Advocacy Centre
Dr Kari Lancaster	Senior Research Fellow, Centre for Social Research in Health, UNSW
Dr Luke Bearup	Sessional academic, School of Regulation & Global Governance, ANU
Dr Jamal Barnes	Lecturer in Criminology, Edith Cowan University
Emma Delahunty	Senior Policy Officer, AMSANT
A/Prof Hilde Tubex	Law, University of Western Australia
Julie Tongs OAM	CEO, Winnunga Nimmityjah Aboriginal Health and Community Services Ltd
Dr Paul Norton	Lecturer, Government & International Relations, Griffith University
Adj Prof Eric Sidoti	Vice-Chancellor's Fellow Western Sydney University
Gai Walker	Managing Director, SCALES Community Legal Centre
The Hon Paul Stein AM QC	Former judge, NSW Court of Appeal
Georgie Sutton	Policy and Governance Officer, Central Land Council
Joan Lipscombe	Concerned citizen
Dr Erica Millar	Crime, Justice and Legal Studies, La Trobe University
Kim Leever	Concerned citizen
Ash Barnes	School of Social Sciences, University of Tasmania
Campbell Thomson	Barrister, Victorian Bar
Geoffry Holland	Lecturer, Faculty of Law, UTS; Barrister, NSW Bar
Rod Madgwick QC	Retired judge of the Federal Court of Australia
Rachael Clark	Solicitor, Canberra Community Law
Janet Wight	CEO, Youth Advocacy Centre Inc
Dr Melissa de Vel-Palumbo	Lecturer in Criminology, Flinders University
Prof Meredith Rossner	Criminology, ANU
Katarina Ljubicic	Barrister, Victorian Bar
Fern York	Teacher, Montessori School Kingsley and International Baccalaureate
Freya Strom	Human Rights Advocate
Prof Michael Levy AM	Medical School, ANU

Lauren O'Brien	Systemic Advocacy Team Leader, ACT Disability Aged and Carer Advocacy Services
Michael Bleasdale	Manager, ACT Disability Aged and Carer Advocacy Services
Annie Madden AO	PhD Candidate, Centre for Social Research in Health, UNSW; Harm Reduction Australia
Dr Shannon Dodd	Research Associate, University of Queensland
Dr Chris Butler	Senior Research Fellow, University of Western Australia
Mi-Lin Chen Yi Mei	RMIT Student Program Manager, Centre for Innovative Justice
Ashleigh Newnham	Manager of Strategic and Community Development, Springvale Monash Legal Service
Jane Sanders	Principal Solicitor, Shopfront Youth Legal Centre
Judy Harrison	Senior Lecturer, College of Law, ANU
Yan Zhang PHD	Scholar in Criminology, ANU
Dr Kate Cashman	Lecturer in Law and Policing, University of Tasmania
Dr Julie Nichols	Lecturer in Architecture, University of South Australia
Bill Bush	President, Families & Friends for Drug Law Reform
Ian Rose	Concerned citizen
Fiona Hilferty	Senior Research Fellow, Social Policy Research Centre, UNSW
Zoe Neumayer	Lawyer, Central Land Council
Vivienne Jan Tuckerman	Retired teacher
Paddy Gibson	Senior Researcher, Jumbunna Indigenous Institute, UTS
Prof Harry Blagg	Law, University of Western Australia
Mary Rowson	Teacher, Lilydale High School, Melbourne, Vic
Sara Dehm	Lecturer in Law, UTS
Dr Karen Sinclair	Program Director, Aboriginal Studies, University of South Australia
Lisa Billington	PhD Candidate and Researcher (Law), UTS
Dr Michele Jarldorn	Chair, Board of Management, Seeds of Affinity – Pathways for Women Inc
Sandra Gendera	Senior Researcher, Social Policy Research Centre, UNSW Sydney
Thomas Bell	Associate, Galbally Parker Lawyers
Andreea Lachs	Churchill Fellow
Sophie Stewart	Campaign Coordinator, Social Reinvestment WA
Charles Henderson	Deputy CEO, NSW Users & AIDS Association (NUAA)
Nicole Spicer	Consultant lawyer, Stary Norton Halphen
Louise Conwell	Lawyer, Stary Norton Halphen
Cheryl Axleby	Co-Chair, National Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Legal Service
Nerita Waight	Co-Chair, National Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Legal Service
Stephanie Kerr	Lawyer, Stary Norton Halphen
Kevin Anderson	Retired Magistrate, NSW
Melanie Walker	CEO, Australian Injecting and Illicit Drug Users League (AIVL)
Hilary Kramer	Former Executive Officer to NSW Women in Prison Task Force
Kristen Wallwork	Executive Director, Springvale Monash Legal Service
Sally Fitzpatrick	Research Fellow, Western Sydney University
Dorothea Anthony	Lecturer, Law, University of Wollongong
Jane Wangmann	Senior Lecturer, Law, UTS
Dr Elyse Methven	Lecturer, Law, UTS
Ross Joyce	CEO, Australian Federation of Disability Organisations
Rosemary Iskander	Board Member, Deadly Connections Community & Justice Services
Dean Lloyd	Volunteer, Deadly Connections Community & Justice Services
Melva Stanley	Board Member, Deadly Connections Community & Justice Services
Suwana Combo	Case worker, Deadly Connections Community & Justice Services

Adam Booker	PhD Candidate and Lecturer, Law, UTS
Hannah McGlade	Senior Indigenous Research Fellow, Curtin University
Eugene Schofield-Georgeson	Lecturer, Law, UTS
Marianne Mackay	Noongar rights campaigner
Genevieve Dally	Northern Territory AIDS and Hepatitis Council
Prof Dawn Bessarab	Centre for Aboriginal Medical and Dental Health, University of Western Australia
Elena Pappas	Law and Advocacy Centre for Women Ltd
Beth Gibbings	PhD Candidate and Lecturer in Law, UTS
Prof Katherine Biber	Law, UTS
Emma Buxton-Namisnyk	PhD Researcher, University of Oxford; Research Fellow, Law, UTS
Prof Joe Graffam	Professor Emeritus, Deakin University
Grant Algie	Barrister, Elliott Johnston Chambers
Ros Williams	Convenor, Canberra Mental Health Forum
Kathy Marks	Journalist and Lecturer Macleay College
Lindsay Wegener	Executive Director, PeakCare Queensland
Patrick McNee	Coordinator, Australians for Disability Justice
Dr Shelley Turner	Senior Lecturer, Social Work, Monash University
A/Prof Gavin Smith	Sociology, ANU
David McDonald	Director, Social Research & Evaluation Pty Ltd
Dr Marietta Martinovic	Senior Lecturer in Criminology and Justice, RMIT
Dr Meredith Burgman	Writer, Retired Parliamentarian, NSW
Prof Murray Lee	Criminology, University of Sydney
Prof Jenni Lightowlers	Dean, Deakin Law School

Institutions

Grata Fund
North Australian Aboriginal Justice Agency
Fitzroy Legal Service
Sisters Inside
Australian Lawyers for Human Rights
National Justice Project
Winnunga Nimmityjah Aboriginal Health and Community Services Ltd
Caxton Legal Centre Inc
SHINE for Kids
Keeping Women Out of Prison Coalition
North Australian Aboriginal Justice Agency Inc

ANNEXURE TO SECOND OPEN LETTER CALLING FOR PRISONER INFORMATION, MONITORING AND RELEASE

On 25 March 2020, the UN High Commissioner for Human Rights, Michelle Bachelet, called on governments to take urgent action to protect the health and safety of people in detention and other closed facilities, as part of overall efforts to contain the COVID-19 pandemic.

Principle 9 of the United Nations Basic Principles for the Treatment of Prisoners makes it clear that “[p]risoners shall have access to the health services available in the country without discrimination on the grounds of their legal situation”.

According to the 2020 Productivity Commission Report on Government Services, the current average daily prison population is 43,115. At 384.2 per 100,000 of the population, Australia’s incarceration rate is well above the OECD average and growing. Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples make up just 2 percent of the population, but they represent 28 percent of the full-time adult prison population. In YDC, the figures are much higher. The Public Health Association of Australia states that:

Prisoners have poorer health than the general community, with particularly high levels of mental health issues, alcohol and other drug misuse, and chronic conditions. They are a vulnerable population with histories of unemployment, homelessness, low levels of education and trauma.

PROPORTIONATE RESPONSES TO COVID19

Australia is a party to the seven core international human rights treaties and, as such, has voluntarily accepted binding legal obligations under international law to protect the rights expressed therein, including:

- an inherent right to life;
- a right to the highest attainable standard of physical and mental health;
- an obligation to ensure that in all actions concerning children, whether undertaken by public or private social welfare institutions, courts of law, administrative authorities or legislative bodies, the best interests of the child shall be a primary consideration; and
- a right to liberty of movement, albeit subject to necessary and proportionate restrictions in relation to public health. Those restrictions are currently the subject of a range of Commonwealth and State/Territory emergency and extraordinary powers.

There is a clear need to mitigate risk to public health from COVID-19. People in prison and the wider community will be affected if prisons and YDC become clusters of infection. There also needs to be accurate public health information on responses (testing, diagnosis and public health measures) in place for people in prisons and YDC. Axiomatically, this requires monitoring systems. For courts dealing with bail hearings or those awaiting sentence, evidence of these responses is relevant for judicial consideration and for administrative decisions on releasing people from prison.

Risks can be reduced by police limiting the number of people who are arrested and then detained, and by prosecutors using their discretion to limit the number of people who are prosecuted and reduce requests for pretrial detention. With a special focus on populations who are vulnerable, prosecutors should also institute a review-and-release protocol in cases where bail was sought. This does not mean there should be a blanket restriction on all court activity, as this will needlessly prolong people's cases and exacerbate the stigma and harm associated with having an open case. Procedures in prisons and YDC must include, at a minimum: screening and testing of people for COVID-19, based on the most up-to-date information available; and access to medical care and facilities to self-isolate and exercise social distancing. This should not result in prolonged, wide-spread lock-downs.

This should come with a heightened focus on identifying vulnerable populations who can be immediately released. Parole Boards should expedite and expand release opportunities for incarcerated people, reducing the populations in prisons as is recommended by health experts. Such measures play a powerful role in stopping the spread of COVID-19 and limiting the harm it inflicts on communities. Decreasing the numbers of incarcerated populations creates a culture in which transparency, safety, and the health of all people are the paramount concerns.

WORLD HEALTH ORGANISATION GUIDANCE ON HEALTH IN PRISONS AND YDC

On 15 March 2020, the World Health Organisation (WHO) published interim guidance on preparedness, prevention and control of COVID-19 in prisons, YDC and other places of detention. It includes the following introduction:

People deprived of their liberty, such as people in prisons and youth detention centres and other places of detention are likely to be more vulnerable to the coronavirus disease (COVID-19) outbreak than the general population because of the confined conditions in which they live together for prolonged periods of time. Moreover, experience shows that prisons and youth detention centres, jails and similar settings where people are gathered in close proximity may act as a source of infection, amplification and spread of infectious diseases within and beyond prisons and youth detention centres. Prison health is therefore widely considered as public health. The response to COVID-19 in prisons and youth detention centres and other places of detention is particularly challenging, requiring a whole-of-government and whole-of-society approach.

The rationale for a whole-of-government and whole-of-society approach is set out and includes the following:

People deprived of their liberty, such as people in prisons and youth detention centres, are likely to be more vulnerable to various diseases and conditions. The very fact of being deprived of liberty generally implies that people in prisons and youth detention centres and other places of detention live in close proximity with one another, which is likely to result in a heightened risk of person-to-person and droplet transmission of pathogens like COVID-19. In addition to demographic characteristics, people in prisons and youth detention centres typically have a greater underlying burden of disease and worse health conditions than the general population, and frequently face greater exposure to risks such as smoking, poor hygiene and weak immune defence due to stress, poor nutrition, or prevalence of coexisting diseases, such as bloodborne viruses, tuberculosis and drug use disorders.

COVID19 is not an excuse for reducing any human rights protections; the WHO guidance stipulates that the COVID-19 outbreak “must not be used as a justification for undermining adherence to all fundamental safeguards incorporated in the United Nations Standard Minimum Rules for the Treatment of Prisoners”, including the prohibition on torture and any cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment, obligations relating to restrictions on solitary confinement, and appropriate provision of health-care.

Further, the COVID-19 outbreak must not be used as a justification for objecting to external inspection of prisons and other places of detention by independent international or national bodies.

Basic measures required within prisons and YDC include the following:

1. Provision of accurate and up-to-date information about COVID-19 and the health risks with transparency about any measures taken.
2. Access to legal and welfare support via free telephone calls, with support to legal and welfare services to triage and refer the calls.
3. As much as possible, single accommodation should be provided, at the very least for anyone who may be more at risk of contracting the virus (e.g. due to age or condition of health).
4. Newly-admitted prisoners should be immediately screened for fever and lower respiratory tract symptoms and if they exhibit such symptoms, they should be immediately isolated.
5. Anyone exhibiting COVID-19 symptoms should be isolated and provided with appropriate medical care. When putting someone in isolation, a full and proper explanation as to why this is occurring is needed. Offers to contact a third party should be made.
6. There is an increased need for emotional and psychological support for anyone who is in isolation since people in prison experience this very differently to members in the general community.
7. Those who are in isolation need to be assured that they will have access to some form of contact with families and friends.
8. Isolation should only occur if it is medically necessary and care is needed so that people in isolation are not stigmatised or marginalised by others in the prison.
9. Even if someone is in isolation, they should be provided with social contact via video link or other form of telecommunications.
10. There should be no torture or cruel, inhuman, or degrading treatment of anyone in the prison during the COVID-19 crisis.
11. All prison and YDC staff need to be provided with appropriate COVID19 training and resourced to ensure testing, diagnosis and public health measures are maintained.
12. Prisons must still allow external independent inspectors / monitors to access the prison either remotely through virtual tour (such as facilitated by mobile devices) or in person, depending on safety issues.
13. Prison staff need to work together with health care professionals more than ever.
14. A suitable register of people coming in and out of prison needs to be maintained with notification of infection procedures.
15. Air flow in enclosed spaces needs to be safe.
16. Food should be distributed in rooms or cells rather than in common canteen areas. This should also apply to other items distributed to people in prison (such as medicines).
17. Prisons and YDC need to manage the number of people who are congregated in any area (inside or outside) so as to limit numbers.
18. People in prison should be given an adequate supply of soap and water and regularly changed personal towels.
19. Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people in prison, in particular, need arrangements for family and cultural contact.

WHO GUIDANCE ON INFORMATION

The Special Rapporteur on the Right of Everyone to the Enjoyment of the Highest Attainable Standard of Physical and Mental Health has found that prolonged medical isolation creates feelings of anger, fear, self-blame, depression and suicide. Such feelings are amplified in prisons and YDC. In situations of deprivation of liberty, private and family life is already subject to restriction. Prison authorities must assist people in prison and YDC to maintain contact with family.

The information from corrections agencies does not appear to be consistent across Australia's States and Territories or with the WHO guidance. Whilst there may be local variations, these need to be justified and the reasons for such decisions visible for governments to assess the continuing risk in each prison and for courts to assess whether it is safe to remand or sentence an individual.

The WHO guidance for risk communication is as follows:

In an event such as the COVID-19 outbreak, it is crucial that there is good coordination between the teams at national and subnational levels involved in risk communication. Close contacts must be established to ensure rapid clearance of timely and transparent communication messaging and materials in such crisis situations. Key messages for people in prison and other places of detention, custodial staff, health-care providers and visitors must be coordinated and consistent.

To address language barriers, translation or visual material may be needed. Information resources for custodial and health-care staff, visitors, vendors and detained persons, such as short information sheets, flyers, posters, internal videos and any other means of communication, should be developed and placed in prison common areas and in areas designated for legal visits and family visits.

Consideration should be given to how messages about risk can be delivered quickly. This should include:

- (1) access to custody notification service, without exemption or delay – COVID-19 powers should not be used as an excuse to deny access to information;
- (2) an overall assessment of the local risk (community risk and risk within the prison);
- (3) advice on preventive measures, especially hand hygiene practices and respiratory etiquette;
- (4) advice on what measures to adopt if symptoms develop;
- (5) information about disease signs and symptoms, including warning signs of severe disease that require immediate medical attention;
- (6) advice on self-monitoring for symptoms and signs for those travelling from or living in affected areas, including checking their temperature;
- (7) advice about how to access local health-care if necessary, including how to do so without creating a risk to health-care workers;
- (8) information that wearing a face mask is recommended for people who have respiratory symptoms (e.g. a cough), but it is not recommended for healthy people. WHO's advice for the public about COVID-19, including information about the myths that surround it, should also be consulted.

OPTIONAL PROTOCOL TO THE CONVENTION AGAINST TORTURE (OPCAT) STYLE MONITORING OF PRISONS AND YDC

In Australia, there appears to have been a lack of preparedness within the prison estate to deal with the current crises. Several jurisdictions, including the Northern Territory are only just providing written guidance, and monitoring systems that are universally accepted under OPCAT have not been implemented. Nonetheless, there are some apparent efforts on foot, including legislation from the NSW Parliament on 24 March 2020, allowing for early releases for vulnerable populations.

Continued independent monitoring of the operation of prisons and YDC, and their response to COVID-19, is essential. The Australian Government ratified OPCAT in December 2017, and opted to seek an extension of three years to allow it to implement the Treaty across Federal, State and Territory jurisdictions. The key obligation that arises from ratifying OPCAT is the establishment of a system of regular preventive visits by independent bodies, known as National Preventive Mechanisms (NPMs). Article 3 of OPCAT states that “Each State Party shall set up, designate or maintain at the domestic level one or several visiting bodies for the prevention of torture and other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment”. The Commonwealth Ombudsman has been nominated as the NPM Coordinator responsible for facilitating and coordinating the Commonwealth, State and Territory NPMs, a role which will include collecting information and facilitating information sharing and preparing reports. The Ombudsman has also been designated as the NPM for inspecting places of detention under the control of the Commonwealth, which are primarily immigration detention facilities. Prisons and YDC fall within the authority of States and Territories. Only Western Australia has currently nominated a State NPM, but all States and Territories have existing monitoring bodies, such as the Ombudsman office, Commission for Children and Young People, and Prisons Inspectorate. Monitoring of the COVID-19 testing, diagnosis and public health measures is therefore entirely possible within existing mechanisms in Australia and can be applied in an OPCAT style.

The present circumstances have affected monitoring activities. Mindful of the do-no-harm principle, the UN Subcommittee on Prevention of Torture (SPT) and some international NPMs have suspended visits in their jurisdictions, while other NPMs have decided to monitor quarantine facilities. These bodies have a mandate to monitor what is happening wherever people are deprived of their liberty, and are thus in a privileged position to identify warning signs and prevent abuse. Australian monitoring bodies must continue to carry out these tasks. In emergency situations, such bodies have a key role to play in assessing and recommending measures to prevent and contain the virus while respecting human rights and dignity. Even under such pressure as the current COVID-19 pandemic, authorities cannot let fear of contagion jeopardise the human rights of those deprived of liberty.

In the absence of effective information or monitoring or where information and monitoring shows that there is a risk to public health in and from prisons and YDC, authorities must revert to non-custodial alternatives to prevent further contamination.

Basic monitoring questions which could be answered immediately by prisons and YDC include:

1. Publishing a copy of any existing COVID-19 safety plan for each prison and YDC and any existing policies and procedures directed at preventing/reducing the spread, control and management of COVID-19 or other communicable diseases in prisons and YDC.
2. Publishing the details of measures being taken to allow for self-isolation, social distancing and access to fresh air.
3. Providing effective sanitiser to each person in prison/YDC.

4. Identifying how many people in prisons are over 60 or otherwise vulnerable to severe health impacts and increased risk of death from COVID-19, including those who have other vulnerabilities, such as a history of being a victim of domestic violence or trafficking, addiction and/or mental health issues.
5. Publishing details of the health and medical care, treatment and facilities, particularly hospital facilities, available, including in regional prisons (transport, beds, ventilators etc).
6. Facilitating personal visits and communication with family, lawyers and cultural or religious connections, and ensuring isolated people in prison can contact others in the prison, advocates, the Ombudsman, medical services, family and friends.
7. Publishing the alternatives that will be available to replace in-person reporting on parole, community corrections and other orders, given that travel and face-to-face contact is generally not possible under current public health guidelines.

PARTICULAR GROUPS

Vulnerability to COVID-19 generally

According to the Center for Disease Control and WHO, older adults and people of any age with serious chronic medical conditions – such as heart disease, lung disease, diabetes or conditions which are the consequences of addiction or who are otherwise immuno-compromised – are at higher risk for contracting and suffering serious harm from COVID-19. Public health experts clearly state that preventing the harm from COVID-19 can become immensely more difficult for people involved in the criminal justice system. Being arrested and detained, incarcerated, or forced to appear in public spaces or having mobility limited even while home, can drastically limit a person’s ability to exercise any precautions or to seek medical help.

Many prisons and YDC exceed design capacity and suffer from a stream of changing communities from those serving short sentences, contributing to the public health risks.

Prescribed physical separation is impossible in the prison’s crowded conditions and isolation can have a significant effect on mental health.

This is also an opportunity to implement new health policies, such as moving addiction policy to treatment in the community.

Special consideration needs to be given to Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people in prison

The ongoing impacts of colonisation, land dispossession and family separation mean that Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people are already experiencing the worst impacts of inequitable health. The Commonwealth’s Chief Medical Officer has identified Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people as more vulnerable to contracting COVID-19. This is due to “a higher risk from morbidity and mortality during a pandemic and for more rapid spread of disease, particularly within discrete communities”.

Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people make up 28% of the imprisoned adult population, but only 2% of the national population. This over-representation is far higher for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander women and children. This is due to a range of systemic factors including over-policing, discrimination, lack of access to legal services, socio-economic factors such as housing, child removal, mental health, family violence. Many Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people in prison have a disability, with 73% of imprisoned men and 86% of imprisoned women reporting at least one diagnosed psychosocial disability, like mental illness.

It is clear that Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people in prison will be more vulnerable to contracting and dying from COVID-19. Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people are already far more likely to die in custody than non-Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people: there have been over 424 Aboriginal deaths in custody since the Royal Commission into Aboriginal Deaths in Custody. Lack of adequate medical care is a factor in far too many of these deaths. NATSILS has heard disturbing reports of access to life-saving Custody Notification Services being denied during the COVID-19 pandemic. It is absolutely critical that all governments take action to prevent COVID-19 related Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander deaths in custody. Cultural protocols and consultation should be undertaken with, and support provided to, Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities before early return of community members occurs.

Children

While children appear to be spared the worst symptoms of COVID-19 (though not those with pre-existing vulnerabilities like those in the youth detention population), the prevailing wisdom is that they are efficient transmitters of the virus, that is, super spreaders. This is in part due to the increased difficulty in ensuring children and young people comply with behavioural changes such as self-distancing measures or handwashing. The cohort of young people in detention who are more likely to have mental illness, cognitive impairment, FASD and other behavioural difficulties are likely to find it harder than most to comply with these directives. This, combined with enclosed, inadequately sanitised, and overcrowded conditions make many YDC high risk environments for the transmission of COVID-19 amongst detainees and staff, and therefore the broader community

Global uncertainty and anxiety about COVID-19 affects all members of our community, but children in detention separated from their families and support networks are at particular risk of mental harm. Children and young people in detention already experience extremely high rates of co-morbid health problems and mental disorders and Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander young people are at even higher risk of self-injury and suicide. Similarly, we expect extremely negative impacts on the mental health and wellbeing of the families of these young people if they are unable to reunited during these difficult times.

Immediate efforts should be made to release these children and young people wherever possible. If these children and young people are not released, there is a very real risk that they will be subjected to conditions of separation, isolation and restriction within YDC if COVID-19 enters the youth detention system, in a belated bid to contain the virus. This poses extreme risk to the mental health and wellbeing of these children. The above signatories are concerned that efforts to control COVID19 including separating detainees, putting detainees in isolation and limiting social interaction and visits will have potentially long- lasting negative impacts on the mental health and wellbeing of these young people.

Emergency measures specific to children include:

- Granting temporary leave to young people who have suitable family or alternative accommodation.
- Prioritising bail for children and young people who are on remand.
- Expediting youth parole board hearings to release children and young people to suitable family or alternative accommodation.
- Enacting legislative changes necessary to release sentenced children and young people early.
- Enacting necessary legislative changes to state and territory bail acts to reduce the number of children on remand due to breaches that do not constitute new offending.
- Making specific provision to move Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander children out of YDC and on country.

Women

The compassionate and sensible legislation from the NSW Parliament on March 24, 2020 allowing for early releases for vulnerable populations inside our prisons and youth detention centres and those who are nearing the end of their sentences is welcome. Reducing the numbers of people in prison is a critical public health strategy, and will assist in reducing the enormous risk of transmission inherent in custodial environments.

One of the key issues highlighted in research undertaken by the KWOOP, is the large numbers of women in prison who are serving short sentences or on remand, who are incarcerated for non-violent offences, and who pose minimal risk in terms of community safety. The Report also draws attention to the long- term disruption of children’s lives from their mothers’ incarceration.

The KWOOP report confirmed the high proportion of women in prison who have experienced multiple factors of disadvantage that have made them particularly vulnerable (histories of abuse and domestic and family violence, mental health and cognitive impairment issues, disability, drug and alcohol addiction, homelessness).

It will be critical in granting early release to women that these factors of vulnerability and their special needs be considered. They should be provided with appropriate support and access to services to reduce the risks of re-offending and re-imprisonment. There will also be urgent need to reduce their risks of exposure to COVID-19 as many also have impaired physical health.

Particular attention should be paid to the release of vulnerable incarcerated Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander women and girls in YDC to safe environments on country and pregnant women and mothers with babies.

Short sentences / short terms remaining / remand populations

The flow of people in and out of custody in Australia is huge. More than 160 people enter our adult prisons every day. Over three-quarters of these people are on remand. Only about 160 people depart prisons every day too. If COVID-19 finds its way into prison, large numbers in prisons and YDC and within the community could become carriers if they are unable to self-isolate before or after they leave. It is also important to understand that prisons operate on the legitimacy of the system. When people in prison feel – rightly or wrongly – they are being treated unfairly, the risk of riots and breakouts increases. The capacity to manage the system may be affected, too, as community transmission and fear of infection in prison increase, and more correctional officers are required to self-isolate for long periods. Releasing some people from prison is part of the solution to “flattening” the COVID19 curve. NSW has passed legislation to release some low-risk and vulnerable people, although it does not cover unsentenced people.

We suggest that legislation across Australia to enable release is particularly appropriate for unsentenced people, who are entitled to the presumption of innocence, especially those charged with less serious offences. In relation to release of those on short sentences, with short periods remaining and unsentenced, bail conditions and electronic monitoring can help ensure community safety, in addition to the increasing restrictions imposed on all Australians to self-isolate.